Justins' Rescue Farm BeeEphee, Michigan

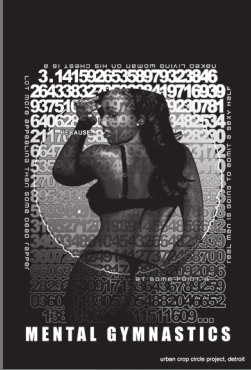

Justin Palowski is a close to a naturalist as it gets.

Matriculated, ecologically dedicated to leaving a small piece of land a little better for life than in found it, and determined to get off the capital carousel.

And still something compels him to rescue, raise and share a pretty good life with a constantly cycling foster farm.

Gallery Collection

To support and encourage artistic expression, the series' patron, U. Newkirk II offers IN-Kind creative space to Detroit Artists, Value Added printing services and boutique gallery space on www.313af.space
